

KLINGON CLOAK FOR A BLACK PALADIN

Zeal Harris

Klingon Cloak for a Black Paladin (33 x 90 inches, Dye sublimation on fabric, 2016) is part of the series, Home Remedies for Driving While Black; a project funded in part with a grant from the Foundation for Contemporary Arts. The artwork is created in memory of Justin Horton Smith, one of four people personally known by the artist who were killed by police. The reference to "Black Paladin" in the title is an homage to Henry Dumas, a Black intellectual killed by police in 1968 in a case of mistaken identity.
